New Ranching Regulations Are At Last Made Public

An Ottawa despatch says the long delayed grazing regulations, in which the whole of the ranching industry of the west is interested, have been approved by the cabinet, and will be signed by the governor-general.

The new regulations are particularly designed to encourage mixed farming in western Canada. In future leases will be for ten years, and the maximum area granted to any one person or company will be twelve thousand acres. Applications will only be granted after a thorough examination to see whether the land is agricultural or grazing. An important clause provides that the holder of an unpatented homestead which, upon examination is found unfit for agricultural purposes, may sell his improvements to a rancher and be granted the right to re-enter for other lands and the purchaser may apply for a lease of the abandoned homestead.

There is a clause which provides that if, after examination of a tract of land applied for, it is found that the granting of a lease would be an injustice to others who have been using the land, and that it would be impracticable to make a satisfactory division of the land, it may be withdrawn from entry and reserved for public grazing purposes.

The regulations also provide that one-third of the whole amount of stock required to be placed upon a leasehold, namely, one head of cattle or five head of sheep for every thirty acres of land, must be on the tract the first year, another third the second year, and the full quota the third year.

If upon inspection it is found the leasehold will support more stock, the minister may require additional stock on the land.

An important clause provides that at least 25 per cent of the stock shall be breeding stock. Reports of the amount of stock must be made made on July 1 each year. The annual rental is at the rate of two cents per acre payable half yearly in advance. All the leases must be enclosed by suitable fences.

The holder of a lease has the prior-right at its expiration to a renewal on complying with the regulations.

A lease cannot be assigned without the consent of the minister.

The lessee is entitled to the hay on his leasehold, but cannot sell it. In addition he may cultivate any of the land for winter feed for his stock, but has no right to dispose of it.

The frontage of a leasehold on a lake or creek shall not exceed one mile for every four miles in depth.

In Memorium

Died at Calgary on Wednesday morning, February, 11th, 1914, Mrs. Bertha Mary McKie, aged 31 years, beloved wife of W.R. McKie, of Gleichen.

The above announcement is one of the saddest records the CALL has had to record and the scribe scarce knows where to begin nor where to end for the one who has departed from this world for a better is one whose memory will live long, as a devoted mother, a loving wife, a loving daughter, a tender sister and a friend to all who knew her.

About seven years ago Mr. McKie came to Gleichen from Prince Edward Island to take the management of the Bank of Commerce and shortly after was followed by his wife and one child. Since then they have had sorrow and happiness very much intermingled.

To them was born four more children. But two have died and have been laid to rest in the Gleichen cemetery, where now their mother rests beside them. The two who passed to a better world were Frances aged one year and Margaret aged four years. The children who survive are Gordon four years, Bertha Wayne two years and Alexandra Helen five weeks old.

Truly Mr. McKie has seen more than his share of sorrow and difficulties and the CALL unites with the entire community in extending to him most sincere sympathy in this his last and greatest sorrow of all also to all the other bereaved ones of their families.

Besides her husband and little children there are many close relatives mourning her loss, namely:

Her mother: Mrs. A. F. Larkin, Edmonton, P.E.I.

Sisters: Miss Bell Larkin, Gleichen, Mrs. Crockett and Mrs. Savage, Calgary and Mrs. Compton, Westholm, Vancouver Island, B.C. Brothers: Messrs. Win. and H. J. Larkin, Edmonton, P.E.I.

The remains were brought from Calgary Thursday afternoon and placed in the Methodist Church, where services were conducted Friday afternoon by Rev. Mr. Boyd assisted by Revs. Rennie and Calam. Mr. Rennie in a brief talk referred in touching language to the great sorrows the departed one had met with in losing her two children, the wonderful patience she had shown throughout her last illness and although realizing the nearness of her departure from her babies and loved ones said she was willing to die if it was God's will, showing a most beautiful Christian spirit to the very end. Mrs. Peter McLean sang with much effect "Will There be Any Stars in My Crown," while all joined in several hymns, the most endearing to those immediately sorrowing ones being "Peace, Perfect Peace." This song the deceased asked her sister Miss Bell Larkin, to sing for her the evening before she passed away and joined in the chorus after which she asked all to go to bed and rest, which they did to find in the morning that she too had gone to her long resting place.

The service ending, the beautiful casket which was covered and surrounded by beautiful flowers was removed from the church by the pallbearers, Messrs. T. Henderson, J. A. Ramsay, E. R. Johnston, W. H. James, C. J. Bray and F. H. Blackburne, after all who desired had been given an opportunity to view the remains of their loved one one of the largest processions ever seen in Gleichen accompanied the remains to the cemetery. Immediately behind the vehicle conveying the remains and another the flowers the mourners came followed by a long column of Masons and Oddfellows, the two organizations uniting as one to express their sympathies with Bro. McKie. Then came many vehicles and people representing not only the townspeople but the entire district was on hand to show the respect and esteem they had for the bereaved ones and the departed.

The beautiful floral offerings were as follows:

Mother and Bell Larkin—Spray. Gordon, Wayne and Helen McKie—Spray.

Hettie and Herb McKie—Wreath. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Savage—Anchor.

Husband—Cross. Mr. and Mrs. Tronsdale—Spray. Jas. Gibson—Spray.

Canadian Bank of Commerce—Wreath.

Two More Scalps for the Hockey Teams

In a game full of frills and thrills with "sunthin doin'" all the time, Gleichen won over the Cockshuts, champions of the Calgary Implement League, at Gleichen last Friday evening. Referee McPhee, of Calgary, furnished the frills. Sel-don in Gleichen has any referee held the game quite so well in hand. And the thrills? They were supplied in full measure by Mgr. Gibson's all-star aggregation to the tune of seven goals to three.

Individual play was the order of the evening. Up to this game the locals have been giving a fine exhibition of team work, but all this was cast aside. Wait a minute—we shouldn't say "all," because there were spurts where the home boys did play real combination—and it was in these spurts that the visitors' goal was bombarded the heaviest.

Calgary scored the first goal after the face-off, followed soon after by Service. The visitors scored again from a hard drive close in. Gaudaur tied the score and McKay gave the locals a lead when he scooped in a rebound from one of his opponents' skates.

The second half was all Gleichen's Mackay putting the puck into the net for four goals. Two of these were on passes from Gaudaur, the others being from mix-ups near the goal. Cockshutt scored once by a long shot.

Reggie Jowett made his debut of this season in goal, with good success. Gaudaur and Fawcett on defence, played a steady game. Clark at center had a hard man in Hall, but acquitted himself well. It was McKay's big night at rover, and he wasn't slow in taking advantage of it. Service at left wing worked hard. Carson's lucky star wasn't shining, but he held his man well.

Bassano Juniors suffered the second defeat of the season by the Gleichen Juniors, on the local rink last Saturday afternoon, the score being 4 to 1.

It was a warm day so that the ice was too soft for fast skating, but the youngsters put up a very good brand of hockey. The two teams were about evenly matched in size, but the local lads excelled in combination play and kept the rubber into Bassano territory most of the time of both periods.

There a number of the Juniors that have the "makings" of A1 players and if they continue to develop, will be sturdy blood to infuse into the Senior team in a season or two.

Brooks will be here in full force for a hockey game Friday night. They are coming to break the winning streak of Gleichen's fast team—if they can, and it will be a battle royal all the way.

Game called at 8.30 sharp. Admission 25c. Be there.

And now Bassano has another excuse to cover up the fact that it is too dead to support a hockey team this winter. It is nothing less than that they are scared. One of the Bassano sports said Saturday that they knew Gleichen had several new players this year—"and who are they unless they are hired outsiders?" Oh, oh, oh!

Calgary spring horse show will be held April 14 to 18.

Miss Mable Koefed has returned from a two-months' visit in the Central States.

Friday evening will be held the annual firemen's ball in the opera house.

Chief Roberts tested all of the hydrants in town Tuesday and he found every one in good working condition.

New show cases have been installed in the Palm Parlors.

NEWS FROM VARIOUS CORNERS OF ALBERTA'S BEST DISTRICT

Standard Farmers Discuss Telephones

The Valentine dance on the 13th was a great success.

H Dankworth announces a dance in the Craigantler school on the 20th. All are welcome.

Mrs. J. Percival has been in poor health lately. We wish her a speedy recovery.

H B Grant, of the Applegate Land Company, is at present in the West. Mr. Grant intends having quite a number of alterations in the farm.

The Farmers' meeting was well attended on the 14th, and a great deal of interesting discussion on road improvement and telephone installation and other matters of great importance were discussed. Everybody present was well satisfied with the procedure of the meeting in general.

E Busby and Pete Beck, of the Applegate Land Co, went north to the Bruner coal mine for coal. They report that sleighing was very good and likewise the coal.

There seems to be signs of wedding bells ringing in the near future in the Craigantler district.

The C P R Department of Natural Resources is giving the farmers in the irrigation block great encouragement to grow alfalfa. The seed is supplied by the company on time so that the farmers should take advantage of it.

Cluny IS Very Much on the Map

Cluny is as it has been for the past few years, the busiest little burg between Calgary and Medicine Hat. It still keeps up the good work.

The sleighing is good and the farmers have been taking advantage of it for the past two weeks hauling grain. The elevator men are working overtime in order to keep the large amount of grain shipped away.

Mr. Forsythe, with his large barn, is unable to accommodate all the teams.

Mr. Renaud has all he can take care of.

Mr. McKenzie has turned his implement shed into a feed stable where he accommodates thirty to forty teams a day.

The general merchants are doing a land office business.

Mr. Clark has just returned from Edmonton, where he went on business.

Work on the new Indian school is going ahead rapidly, and we are informed that the carpenters and painters will soon finish.

Mr. Clark, the well-known ditch contractor, has bought a lot adjoining Mr. Forsyth, where he intends to build in the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross are rejoicing over the arrival of a nine pound boy, February the 13th.

Dance in Cluny, Friday, February 20th. All are cordially invited.

Interesting News From Queenstown

Queenstown has now been in the grip of winter for about a month and it has been the real article too. For several nights our local thermometers showed 38 below. The cold weather and snow has not brought the expected joy to those who had grain to haul. The snow has been too loose and weather too cold to pack the snow for a good sleighing trail then the icy blast was hard to face.

Several farmers have paid heavy tributes to Jack Frost. Dave Oeler had one of his toes badly frozen and one of the teamsters hauling grain from the Circle Farm lost his way Sunday evening two weeks ago and wandered on the prairie all night. He was found east of the coal mines Monday morning in a badly frozen condition.

The Farmers Union will meet in the Queenstown school Saturday afternoon, February 21st, at 2 o'clock. Members wanting wire and posts should attend. Mr. Trego of Gleichen, our new director for the Medicine Hat District, will attend the meeting and lay certain important matters before the Union.

The O'Leary-Bertrand wedding dance held at Lake McGregor school on Friday, February 6th was not very well attended owing to the extreme cold weather. But those who were there had a good time.

Mrs. P. Stumpf is spending a week with her daughter, in Cluny.

M. Munkholm has rented the Mason place for next year. He will take possession March 1st.

Ike Jordan says he is going to live in town, the country is too slow for him.

One of the officials of the Alberta telephone Co. was out to Queenstown recently and stated that the trunk line would be built next summer. But farmers wanting the phone must sign a new petition. George Macomber has sent for petition blanks.

Mrs. Verna Kiemle who has been ill for several months was taken to a Calgary hospital several weeks ago.

Like true love the affairs of the Liberta School District never did run smooth. The ratepayers appear to be divided into two hostile camps and the bone of contention has been "to dance or not to dance." Almost since the erection of the school the people who don't dance or rather don't want the school used for dancing, has been in control. At the election held recently the other faction came out in full force and captured the election. Since winning their great victory they have made up for lost time and several dances have been held.

Local Option Wins at Namaka Debate

The first debate of the Namaka Literary Society held on the 11th was a great success.

The president of the society, W. Colpoys, took the chair and announced "That Local Option would be a benefit to State or Province" would be the subject for debate that evening. M. Brown, W. T. Putnam, and Mrs. Winspear were for affirmative and Stanley Taylor, Ed Thomson and Miss Wheeler the negative.

Messrs McBean, Crowe and W W Winspear were the judges.

A spirited debate took place, the speakers holding the attention of the house from start to finish.

At the conclusion the judges announced a victory for the affirmative, 16 points to 13.

The next debate is "That Capital Punishment should be abolished," on the 25th inst. Mr McBean, Mr McKinnon and Miss Stevens, affirmative; Mr Winspear, H Colpoys and Miss Smalley, negative.

All are looking forward to the basket social on the 20th.

Re the new name for the Call. Some of us feel you are cutting Namaka out a bit. The Call always has been so generous to Namaka with its news columns and the new name does seem to forget its old friends a bit. Why not—"The Gleichen Call & Namaka Booster!" Now Mr. Editor, doesn't that take your eye a bit. Any charge for the suggestion? O dear no.

Never mind. "A rose by any other name" etc. The Call and its worthy editor will be just as welcome at Namaka as ever.

Fire Brigade Meeting Next Saturday Night

Constable Jack Roberts, the newly appointed chief of the Fire Brigade, announces that a meeting will be held in the Town Hall on Saturday evening, Feb 21st, to consider the re-organization of the brigade. All members not attending or failing to send in written reasons for their absence will be struck off the roll. All accounts must be in the hands of the Fire Department by Feb. 21. Warning is given that badges, coats, or other material belonging to the department found in the possession of any person not a member of the brigade will be taken and the party or parties prosecuted.

Mrs. R. L. Redfern arrived Monday afternoon for a visit with her brother, J. L. McCrimmon, and their mother. Mr. Redfern has a barber shop in Claresholm.

G. Patterson, teacher of the Standard school, spent the week-end in Gleichen with his former school mate, H. D. Mackay.

The Deacon's Mistake

Sister Henderson, said Deacon Hypers severely, you should avoid even the appearance of evil.

Why, Deacon, what do you mean? asked Sister Henderson.

I observed that on your sideboard you have several cut-glass decanters, and that each of them is half filled with what appears to be ardent spirits.

Well, now, Deacon, it isn't anything of the kind. The bottles look so pretty on the sideboard that I just filled them half way with some floor stain and furniture polish, just for appearance.

That's why I am cautioning you, Sister, replied the Deacon. Feeling a trifle faint I helped myself to a dose from the big bottle in the middle.

Willie, admonished the mother, why don't you let your little brother have your ailed some of the time?

Why I do, Mamma, said Willie. He has it more than half the time. I take it going down hill and he brings it up.

Well, Pat, said the doctor, I hope your master's temperature is lower this morning than it was last night.

Well, sir, that's hard to tell, sir, replied Pat.

Why? said the doctor, smiling.

He died this morning, sir.

What you said, Madam, said the physician to his fashionable lady patient, is oxygen. Come every afternoon for inhalations. They will cost you five dollars each.

There, said the lady, I just knew that other doctor didn't know his business. He told me all I needed was plain fresh air.

His Gift

A young man was deeply in love with a beautiful girl. One day she told him that the next day would be her birthday, and he laughingly said that he would send her a bunch of roses, one or each year of her life.

That evening he wrote to his florist ordering twenty-four roses to be sent to the young woman on the first delivery next day.

The proprietor of the flower shop looking over the mail in the morning saw the order and said to the foreman: John, here's an order from young Mr. Flint for twenty-four roses. He's a mighty good customer, so put in a dozen extra ones.

And the young man never knew what made the girl so angry with him.

And Then There Were None

On clearing the harbor the ship ran into a nasty half-pitching choppy sea, which was especially noticeable as the twenty-five passengers at the captain's table sat down to dinner.

I hope that all twenty-five of you will have a pleasant trip said the captain as the soup appeared, and that this little assembly of twenty-four will be much benefited by the voyage. I look upon these twenty-two smiling faces as a father upon his family, for I am responsible for the safety of this group of seventeen. I hope that all fourteen of you will join me in drinking to a merry trip. I believe that we are the most congenial, and I applaud the judgment which chose these three persons for my table. You and I, my dear sir, are—Here, Steward, clear away those dishes and bring me the fish.

She Made Him Buy

Business was in full swing at the church bazaar when a young man strolled around evidently with no intention of purchasing anything. As he passed one booth the young lady seller detained him.

Won't you buy a cigarette holder, sir?

No thank you, I don't smoke, was the reply.

Or a penholder worked with my own hands? I don't write.

Then do have this nice box of chocolates? I don't eat sweets.

The young lady's patience was exhausted. Sir, she said grimly, will you buy this cake of soap?

He bought it.

He Was Going Some

A group of visitors was going through the county jail and a burly negro trusty was called to open doors for the visitors.

How do you like it in here? one of the women asked.

Like it, Ma'am? It ev' Ah gets out o' heah Ah'll go so fer rum here it'll take nine dollars to send me a postal card.

Not Just What She Meant

The lady had just been introduced to her partner at a holiday dance and was talking to him vivaciously. Tell me, she said, who is that terribly homely man over there?

The gentleman looked. That, he said ponderously, is my brother.

Oh! grasped the lady in horrified amazement. Pardon me. Really, I hadn't noticed the resemblance.

One in a Million

Stranger—the whole town seems to be turning out to this funeral. The deceased must have been very popular.

Native—Stranger, he was one man in a million. After he boug' his car he gave everybody a ride that he had promised to.

Their Message

The evening callers were chatting with their hosts when there came a patter of little feet along the hall.

Hush, whispered the hostess, raising her hand, the children are coming with their good-night message. It always gives me a feeling of reverence to hear them. They are so much nearer to Heaven than we, and they speak from the fullness of their little hearts never so freely as when their little hearts have come.

Listen! There was a moment's pause, and then the message came in a shrill whisper: Mamma, it ran, Willie found a cockroach in the tub.

No Socialist He

Your husband is a Socialist. I believe? asked a friend at the reception of Mrs. Smith.

A Socialist? replied Mrs. Smith. No, indeed. Wh, he hates to make calls with me.

As Her Mother Saw It

Have you spoken of our love to your mother as yet? he asked.

The girl shook her head.

Not as yet, she whispered.

Has she noticed nothing? She has noticed that I have been acting queerly of late, but she thinks it's just biliousness.

She Didn't Wait for Mamma

Miss Doyle, said the six-year old to the visitor, who was waiting for Mamma, will you take one of your shoes off a minute?

My short? why, Johnnie.

Why, I heard Mamma say you were getting crow's feet awfully.

She Took Every Precaution

Jane, said the mistress, how was it that I saw you eating of our cake last evening?

I'm sure I don't know, Ma'am, answered the maid. I thought I had covered the keyhole.

The Label Regulated the Price

What you said, Madam, said the physician to his fashionable lady patient, is oxygen. Come every afternoon for inhalations. They will cost you five dollars each.

There, said the lady, I just knew that other doctor didn't know his business. He told me all I needed was plain fresh air.

A young man was deeply in love with a beautiful girl. One day she told him that the next day would be her birthday, and he laughingly said that he would send her a bunch of roses, one or each year of her life.

Control of Municipal Finance

Pursue Safer Course

The safer course would be to let each village, town or city stand on its own feet in this respect, with the result that the city or other municipal body which practised true economy and displayed foresight and executive ability in its administration, would receive due credit therefore. Under this arrangement our municipalities would still float their own debentures, but the advice of the commission might always be obtained for the asking.

Tendency to Borrow Hastily

Municipalities occasionally rush into schemes of improvement without considering whether the generations to come will be able to carry the burden. A town becomes intoxicated with the growth and development of a nearby city and seeks by expenditure in handsome public buildings, sewer and water mains, etc., to follow the footsteps of its populous neighbor. With this spirit in the air ambitious schemes are hurriedly undertaken with more thought for the present than the years to follow. More than once we have read in Old Country papers that mayors and councillors are sometimes moved to reason of their self interest to support improvements which involve debenture borrowings and attention has been drawn to the preponderance of the real estate interests on Western Council Boards.

We believe that this statement can only be supported in fact by isolated instances, but there is no doubt at all this criticism would come to an end by the appointment of an impartial Board such as this commission should be.

A commission such as is proposed would prevent municipalities embarking upon an improvement scheme, thereby incurring expense upon the ratepayers without first having the approval of the people who are to pay for the work. Reference to the charters backs returns to the Dominion Government for the month of August last will disclose the fact that over 40,000,000 was in loan to cities, towns, municipalities and school districts in Canada. In September this amounted to $37,465,383.00. There is no doubt that many of our chartered banks are carrying unsold debentures of municipalities to the practice of entering into heavy expenditures for public works without first soundly the market as to the probability of an early and satisfactory sale of their securities.

Commission Would Investigate

When a town had decided to embark upon a public work as has already been mentioned, full details would be forwarded to the commission, whereupon one of its members would visit the town and would investigate the need for the work, its feasibility, and whether it was likely to be carried out with due regard for efficiency and economy. Also, whether the undertaking was not so large, as to unduly tax the ability of the ratepayers to pay for the work. After this investigation had been concluded, the report would be made to the full commission, and if they were thoroughly satisfied their approval would issue in due course.

Simplify Bylaws

We would like to go so far as to say that the loan should be authorized forthwith, but recomme the submission of the scheme to the ratepayers who would by their vote say whether or not they were willing to incur the debt. To take away the vote would be a serious mistake. In this connection we would not suggest that lengthy bylaws, such as are now used for the authorization of municipalities, should be adhered to, but rather an abbreviated form which might be suggested by the commission itself, applicable for such improvements as it was intended to undertake. This would not only tend to reduce labor of framing, reading and passing in Council, but would cheapen the cost of borrowing. The printing, preparation and passing of bylaws of this character cost the municipalities of our Province a great deal of money annually. The ratepayers would be voting intelligently as they would know that the undertaking had received the approval of the municipal commission. This alone would tend to allay the feeling among over seas and other investors that many of our public bodies were overborrowing.

Without doubt improvements have been undertaken in towns and cities throughout our Province (and in this our Province is by no means alone) and debentures issued to cover the cost thereof spread over such a period of time that it is safe to hazard the opinion that the generation to come will be paying the just debt of those living today. We hear the statement frequently made that our municipalities are prone to issue bonds for local improvements for terms beyond the probable life of the work. A municipal commission would undoubtedly remedy this trouble. Twenty years is considered to be too long a term over which to spread the payment of a debenture debt incurred for the construction of cement sidewalks. Ten years would be better, certainly, fifteen years should be an outside term. Many bonds issued for a term of forty and sometimes fifty years should have been materially cut down.

The issuing of debentures for skating and curling rinks should be discouraged. Funds for such purposes should be provided by private enterprise. There may be some excuse for this practice in the case of small villages where it may be difficult to induce a private citizen or company to erect a building of this character. Such propositions as a rule, do not yield a profit. Undoubtedly a building of this character affords an opportunity for the citizens of tomorrow to indulge in our healthy national winter sports. It may be added that bonds of this character are generally difficult to market.

Every Home Needs 7am-Buk

What the Audience Was Doing

A weary and dejected theatrical troupe, after an unsuccessful trip, arrived in a small New Jersey town. A fair-sized audience witnessed the first performance without furor, although there was enough handclapping to arouse the troupe's wavering spirits. The leading man promptly stepped to the footlights after the first act and bowed profoundly, but still the clapping continued. As he went behind the scenes he encountered an Irish stagehand.

I guess that's some acting, said the Thespian, throwing out his chest proudly.

What d'yez mane, the handclapping? inquired the Irishman.

That's not appreciation, man, said the stage hand, that's the audience killing mosquitoes.

What He Needed

A girl was complaining to her chum just before Christmas of the way her young man was treating her. Speaking of Christmas presents, why don't you give him the mitten?

It isn't a mitten he needs, it's a pair of socks; he's got cold feet.

A safe and sure medicine for a child troubled with worms is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

She Thought he Had Forgotten

Mischa Elmer, the violinist, was playing at a reception at Russian Prince's and, he says, for an arch of seven, as I was at that time, I flatter myself I rattled off Beethoven's 'Kreutzer Sonata' finely. This sonata, you know, has in it several long and impressive rests. In one of these rests a motherly old lady leaned forward, patted my shoulder and said: 'Play something you know, dear.'

When Mr. Abbott called on a young woman one evening, he was being entertained by her young brother, Andrew, until she made her appearance. If you don't give me a quarter, said little Andrew, I am going to tell about you kissing my sister.

But I hadn't thought of kissing your sister, protested Mr. Abbott.

You ain't? I, Andrew, plainly puzzled; then what did she pay me to say that to you for?

How She Knew

Effie, said Margie, who was poring over her first reader, how can I tell which is a 'd' and which is a 'b'?

That's easy, said Effie wisely, the 'd' has its tummy on its back.

How It Was Accounted For

How does it happen, said the teacher to the new pupil, that your name is Allen and your mother's name is Brown?

Well, explained the small boy, after a moment's thought, you see, she married again and I didn't.

Why She Said It

King George was being entertained at a private luncheon recently when the tiny daughter of the hostess, being spoken to by His Majesty, responded politely and asked: I think Your Majesty it's a very remarkable man.

Astonished at such precocity the King smiled, and asked kindly: Why do you say that, my dear?

Because Ma told me to, was the unexpected reply.

She Saw It Herself

Farmers, said the fair city visitor, are just as dishonest as the city milkmen.

How d'ye make that out? asked the farmer's wife.

This morning, said the girl accusingly, with my own eye I saw your hired man water the cows just before he milked them.

He Kept What Was Left

The little son of the physician, together with a friend, was playing in his father's office during the absence of the doctor, when suddenly the young host threw open a closet door and disclosed to the terrified gaze of his little friend in articulated skeleton.

When the visitor had sufficiently recovered from his shock to stand the announcement the doctor's son explained that his father was extremely proud of that skeleton.

Is he? asked the other. Why?

I don't know, was the answer; maybe it was his first patient.

A Surprise for the Teacher

This class comprehends the meaning of words very quickly, said the Boston teacher to her visitors. You noticed we spoke of the word 'ransom' a few minutes ago. How many—turning to the children—can think of a sentence containing the word 'ransom'? Every one. Yes, Harold?

Harold arose proudly. My sister's young man ran some when Pa—

AFTER EFFECTS OF DREADED LA GRIPPE

Overcome by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Throughout Canada la grippe (influenza) prostrates thousands of busy men and women every winter, wrecking their health and leaving behind numerous serious ailments. It is the after effects of la grippe that cause such widespread misery. Here is the reason. La grippe leaves behind it weakened vital powers, a shattered nervous system, impure and impoverished blood, and a low state of health that renders the sufferer extremely liable to rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia and nervous disorders. You can avoid la grippe entirely by keeping the blood rich and pure through the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Or, because you have not recognized your blood weakness, la grippe fastens its fangs upon you. Its disastrous after-effects can be driven out by the same medicine. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills increase and enrich the blood supply, feed the starving nerves, and thus impart new health and new strength to enfeebled men and women. Mr. G. St. Clair, connected with the Sun Life Assurance Co., Halifax, N.S., says: 'I was taken down with a heavy cold, la grippe and was confined to the house for some weeks. I had the best of medical attention, and although the doctor said I was cured I was still far from well, and did not have the time necessary for a strenuous business life, and did not attend to either office or field work. Talking with a friend he said: 'Why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills? I decided to do so, and before I had used a box felt an improvement, and before long the illness made me feel like a new man. I can't therefore say too much in favor of this valuable medicine, and hope that any who may read this and be in need of medical attention will be persuaded to try this truly wonderful medicine.'

You can get these health-renewing Pills through any medicine dealer or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes or $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

He War Looking Too

An Ohio farmer wrote that he owned nine cows, and asked Representative Nicholas Longworth to send him a Government exterminator for flies. He got this reply:

Sorry, but I, too, am in most of the same thing. I have no cows, but I have a bald head.

Mr. Zangwill's Preference

Israel Zangwill, while visiting in Chicago, was once seated at dinner next to a young woman who, knowing his religion, asked impudently: Mr. Zangwill, how do you like our Chicago ham?

The great Jewish writer looked placidly at her. Madam, he replied, I much prefer it to your Chicago tongue.

Louis Had Trade Laid and Repeated

Louis had trade laid and repeated calls for more turkey at the Christmas dinner. After she had disposed of a liberal quantity she was told that too much turkey would make her sick. Looking wistfully at the fowl for a moment she said:

Well, give me another piece and send for the doctor.

A young man, very fond of the girls, but very cautious as to his dealings with them, recently went to a poetical friend and asked him if he would help get up a birthday sonnet to a certain young lady.

Well, said the poet friend, what do you want me to say?

Why, you ought to know about what's the proper thing, said the young man. Something rather tender but at the same time, remember, I don't want to commit myself in any way.

Well, said the poet, you don't

EGGLESS RECIPES FOR BOYCOTTING COOKS

FOLLOWING are a few attractive desserts that the most conscientious abstainer from eggs may serve without scruples:

Apple Sauce Pudding.
Cream together one tablespoonful of butter and a scant cupful of sugar; then beat in one cupful of strained apple sauce, half a teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of ground cinnamon, half of a grated nutmeg, one teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in a little hot water, two cupfuls of sifted flour and a small cupful of chopped and seeded raisins. Mix the ingredients thoroughly, turn into a ring mold that has been well greased and bake about forty minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot with hard sauce, flavored with sherry.

Chocolate Bavarian Cream.
Cover the contents of half a box of gelatin with half a cupful of cold water and let it soak for half an hour. Grate two ounces of chocolate, add it to a pint of boiling milk with half a cupful of sugar and the gelatin and stir until all the ingredients are dissolved. Take from the fire and flavor with a scant teaspoonful of vanilla extract, turn into a bowl and beat with an egg beater until it begins to thicken. Have in readiness half a pint of whipped double cream, fold this into the gelatin preparation and pour into an ornamental mold. Set on the ice to chill and harden. Serve unmolded accompanied by a cream sauce.

Grape Juice Water Ice.
Boil together one quart of water and a pound of sugar for five minutes. Remove from the fire and when cold add one pint of unfermented grape juice and the strained juice of one lemon. Taste to see if it is sweet enough and freeze in the usual manner. Serve in small crystal sherbet cups, ornamented with a few crystallized cherries.

Nut Charlotte.
This dessert may be prepared in about ten minutes. Have half a pint of double cream thoroughly chilled, add two tablespoonfuls of cold rich milk and with an egg beater whip the cream until it will stand alone; then very gradually add a small cupful of maraschino cordial, sugar to taste, one tablespoonful of chopped cherries and a small cupful of chopped nut meats. Turn into a glass bowl which has been lined with lady fingers and set on the ice for half an hour before serving.

Lemon Tartlets.
Warm four ounces of butter, grate the peel of two lemons, add four ounces of powdered sugar, a few chopped almonds, one heaping tablespoonful of grated cake crumbs and the juice of one lemon. Mix the ingredients well and pour into tart pans lined with a good puff paste. Bake for fifteen or twenty minutes in a quick oven. Serve cold.

Jam Roly Poly.
Free five ounces of suet from fiber and skin, have it very cold and chop very finely with half a pound of flour and half a teaspoonful of salt. Mix well and add sufficient ice water to make a paste that can be handled. Roll it out on the floured pastry board to about one inch in thickness, spread over it a pint of any preferred fruit jam, roll it up and tie securely in a well floured cloth, leaving plenty of room for it to swell. Put the pudding into a pot of actively boiling water and boil for two hours, or it may be steamed for two hours and a half. Serve with hard sauce.

Coquetry Unprecedented In Hosiery and Footwear

MEN are not monopolizing all the gay hosiery this winter, as they tried to do last summer. Unobtrusive feminine hosiery is decidedly out of vogue these days, and even the most expensive stocking of subtly flesh tinted daintiness is not born to blush unseen. Millady's fancy stockings are an important part of her getup and are as obvious as any part of her toilet for street or evening. In the days of our grandmothers this was considered immodest to show even an inch of such an intimate detail of the wardrobe as the stocking, and in consequence the frill of a prim and decorous pantalolet fell to the boot top.

All this has been changed, however, and nobody makes any bones—if one may thus refer to pretty ankles—nowadays of showing several inches of the anatomy above the slipper or boot top and beneath a generously slashed skirt.

Modern stockings are expensive items of the wardrobe, and whereas three for a dollar like hosiery used to do duty for all ordinary occasions, with a pair or two of silk hose for special times, the well dressed woman of the moment wears silk all the year round. And lace up the front flanked by small eyelets through which ribbon is laced across the openwork panel.

But the very latest hosiery fad is animal stockings. To what mad lengths has this craze for the eccentric taken us! Dogs, cats, monkeys, lizards, butterflies and other specimens of the reptile and insect kingdom are represented on silk hose in hand embroided designs. Even the tantalizing mosquito in lifelike guise is seen making his insidious way over the instep of an up to date stocking.

The most extreme examples of the new animal stockings are pictured in the large cut. Of these the white mice stockings are particularly in favor for dancing. The white mouse appears to be running in a fascinatingly fearful manner up millady's ankle, over a stocking of taupe colored silk.

Another illustration shows bronze stockings embroidered with beaded lizards in iridescent colors, and the dainty bronze beaded slippers with straps buttoning across the instep show that these stockings are intended to tango in. A black silk stocking has a tiny monkey embroidered in chenille and beads.

Besides the monkey stocking is a very smart striped stocking for wear with a buttoned street boot, the stripes of flesh tinted silk and dark gray silk having a startling effect above the boot top.

A clocked stocking of novel style is pictured, the clock being made not of the usual embroidery, but of white cord lacings, which pass through tiny embroidered eyelets.

Near this clocked stocking is a bracelet hose, intended for wear with a low pump. The bracelet is embroidered on the silk with tiny gold beads and flat cabochons imitating jewels.

On the seated figure a very popular tango stocking is shown. Woven into the silk mesh of this flesh tinted model is a black tango boot imitating the laced corset so much in favor at the moment.

Stock stockings are striking if not pretty. The upper part of this freakish stocking is of flesh tinted silk, the lower part of some dark color. The line of demarcation comes just above the top of the buttoned walking boot, so that the foot appears to be incased in the dainty boot and the silk sock, juvenile fashion.

To talk of shoes, not in years has footwear displayed such unprecedented coquetry. Most boots worn with afternoon costumes have buttoned tops of contrasting material, usually kid in gray or tan tone, though occasionally twilled cloth or suede matches the color of the gown, and all boot heels are Frenchly high and curved, though the new spoon heel, broad at the base and easy to walk upon imitates the curved Louis heel without its uncomfortable qualities. But smart footwear is another story.

THE LATEST THING
IN LAMP SHADES

THIS is the age of the utilitarian, for who but a practical woman of this twentieth century would ever have thought of making a lamp shade from her grandmother's old parasol top? An ingenious young housekeeper has accomplished this feat. She had among her inherited treasures an old high glass lamp with gilt trimmings and also a rose brocaded silk parasol tipped with carved ivory knobs. Combining these two treasures, she made a lamp and shade of which any interior decorator might be proud.

One sees at once that the shade has been a parasol, with merely the sick removed, as one charm of this idea is to show that an old parasol of bygone days and style is being used.

In some cases the ribs are removed entirely, and the parasol covering, set on a wire frame, through the triangular pieces forming the top show plainly that it was originally a sunshade. The main idea is to keep the parasol effect and not have the lamp shade look like a modern covering patterned after a parasol.

Now that lace lamp shades with bright brocade linings are so modish the possessors of old fashioned lace carriage parasols should make use of them, for their possibilities are many. A number of these parasols belonging to our female ancestors are of bright green silk, and if you have a parasol of this description you are fortunate, as it can be adjusted to suit any kind of base or standard. Green blends with any dark, rich colored vase, as well as with crystal or popular wooden standards.

For the woman not blessed with old sunshades the lamp shade pictured, although not quite so unique, will be an addition to her drawing room or boudoir lamp. It is in empire shape, and the material used is Du Barry rose brocaded silk, futed, to the frame top and bottom. A dull gilt fringe completes this delightfully artistic shade.

How High Is Your Kitchen Sink?

COMFORTABLE WAY OF WASHING DISHES

SO many women who do their own housework complain of backache after much dishwashing, and they wonder why this is the case. An easy enough question to answer, madam. Your kitchen sink is too low. Raise the sink to twenty-nine and one-half inches in height; that's the cure. Merely for the addition of a few inches more of piping women have been suffering with backache or propping up their dishpans in porcelain sinks.

The average sink of commerce comes twenty-four inches, and the builders buy these ready made articles and install them in their houses, but in New York city, if the plans of the suffragists go through, the sink will become a campaign issue. "Vote for the man who will raise the sink!" will be the slogan of the housewives.

There is also another little matter in connection with the sink and that is the drain, which is worthy of attention. It is usually found on the right side of the sink when it should be on the left. This causes a crossing of hands in washing, as one must wash with the right hand, and to place the dishes when washed back on the right is a waste of labor that could be easily avoided.

THE STANDARD

"HER stole cost $1,000, her muff $500 and the feather in her hat $200. So she must be a real lady." So quoth a little shopgirl standing behind the counter, whence her voice was heard by a customer.

But must she be "a real lady" because her clothes were so expensive? The true gentlewoman is not given to ultra extravagance in dress. It is a sign of unbalanced temperament and of an undue desire to attract attention

These are not the attributes usually associated with the idea of the "real lady." There you are, however.

The purchaser was in the height of fashion so far as her attire could make her so. The new styles are wide and long. The new muffs are as large as two sofa bolsters rolled in one. As to the new furs! They are every color in the rainbow—pink, pale blue, emerald green and other tints unknown to the original owners, the little furry animals.

SHORT TALKS ON BABY LOGY

ARTICLE NO. 2

THE natural, the best food for the newborn babe is mother's milk. And the Creator has given the average woman strength to nourish her child in this natural way. Sometimes, directly after the baby's birth, the mother is very weak; then well meaning but interfering relatives and advisers urge her to wean the baby at once, when with a little patience the supply of milk would be ample. Unless the mother is anemic or suffering from constitutional or acute disease the baby will thrive best on mother's milk, and the ability to nurse the baby until a safe time for weaning can be encouraged by careful attention to the mother's diet, says Anna Steese Richardson in the Woman's Home Companion.

A well balanced diet, made up from a variety of foods which the mother craves, will nourish both mother and child. Meat that is easily digested, like chicken, beef and lamb, is better than pork and veal. Fish may occasionally be substituted for meat, and eggs are desirable if they do not create a bilious condition. Green vegetables and fresh or stewed fruits the mother should have in quantity. On the other hand, she should avoid excesses in diet.

whether this be tea, coffee, sweets or pastries. Light desserts do no harm, but rich pies and puddings that keep the mother awake at night will have precisely the same effect on the baby.

No young mother should listen to what doctors call "old women's tales"—bad advice about extremes in diet. I have heard a young mother say that she was drinking malt to make her milk more nourishing for the baby. And how she did hate that malt! It nauseated her every time she drank it.

When the doctors told her that anything which nauseated her would effect the baby in the same way she was actually relieved. Yet she had been forcing herself to drink the malt because an elderly neighbor had told her what wonders it had done for other women. Doctors, not neighbors, should be consulted about these problems.

Another condition of the mother which will affect the baby's digestion is nervousness. A baby should not be nursed when the mother is angry or is suffering from shock of any sort. The mother who is very tired from her household duties should sit or lie down and relax before nursing the baby. If she sips a glass of milk or eats a cracker or biscuit before nursing the baby she will help its digestion.

CAKES FOR THE CHILDREN

GRAHAM CRACKER CAKE.

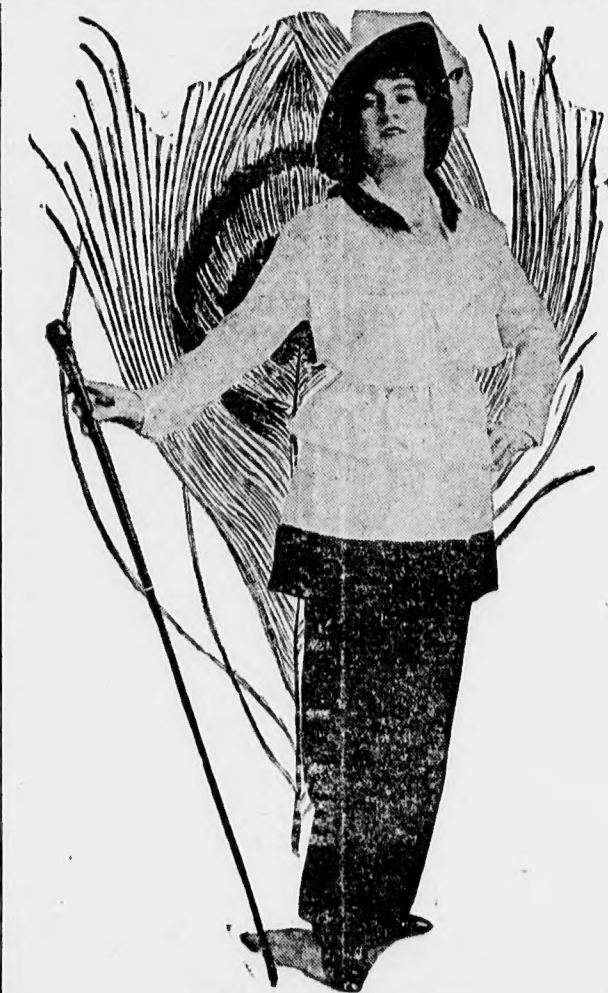

GRAHAM cracker cake is delicious made by the following recipe: Beat half a cupful of butter to a cream, gradually beat in one cupful of granulated sugar; then the beaten yolks of three eggs, one cupful and a half of sweet milk, one pound of graham crackers rolled fine and sifted; then mixed with two slightly rounded teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and, lastly, the whites of three eggs, beaten dry, says the Boston Cooking School Magazine. Bake in three layer cake pans about twenty-five minutes. Put the layers together with mocha frosting. Spread mocha frosting lightly over the top and sides; then decorate the top and sides with the rest of the frosting. Use a pastry bag and very small five pointed tube in piping the frosting. The cake may be baked in a dripping pan and cut into individual cakes.

Mocha Frosting.

Beat half a pound of butter to a cream and gradually beat in two cupfuls and a half of sifted confectioner's sugar and a scant quarter of a cupful of very strong black coffee.

Striking Contrasts Are Notable

STUDY IN BLACK AND WHITE.

VERY striking is the combination of black and white in this restaurant costume. There is a touch of black fur on the collar, and a band of black velvet softens the juncture of the white tunic and black velvet skirt. A black and white hat and black buttoned boots complete the smart effect.

LOOK INTO THIS, GIRLS

WHEN the girl who is obliged to earn her own living graduates from high school or college her first thought in selecting a vocation is that of school teaching. She is apt to overlook the fact that one of the pleasantest and most profitable of professions open to women nowadays is that of physical training and recreation work. Indeed, it pays much better than teaching in colleges.

Any girl, provided she has the physical makeup for the work, may fit herself for this calling. The work itself is vigorous and wholesome and especially well worth doing as a form of service to the community.

If a girl decides on this line of study she should first look over the various normal colleges which prepare for this work and if possible consult an expert on physical education in her own town. When she has decided upon the best school she has only to give herself conscientiously to the work planned by her instructors and to make a note of all the work in the playgrounds that come her way.

After several years' training she should be prepared to pass the examination of the civil service board in a large city and in this way get a good appointment or to obtain a position directly in a smaller town.

Not only the regular school work is open to the physical director, but all kinds of recreation and playground teaching. This kind of physical instruction is obtainable, too, at evening schools.

DON'T BE A SLAVE TO A MEMO-RANDUM BOOK.

MANY women never go shopping without first making an accurate list of everything they intend to purchase or inspect. Many others never plan their housework without making a minute list. Every time they do this they are weakening their powers of memory and becoming more and more dependent upon pencil and paper. For very long lists pencils and paper are all right, but if people would accustom themselves to remembering little things without the help of lists they would soon be surprised to find how their powers of detailed memory were growing.

GARTERS FOR THE SLIT SKIRT.

TROUSER garters, or, as they are sometimes called, tango garters, are coming into quite general use. They are, as you doubtless know, a very tight garter, trimmed with rhinestone buckles and chiffon flowers, from which hangs a plaited founce of chiffon or crepe de chine. These are used with slashed dresses for dancing and in some cases with regulation tailored suits.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1914

U. F. A. elevators handled two million bushels of grain last year.

"Country Life in Canada" published at Winnipeg, reprints a part of an article in the CALL re a shipment of
No. 1 Marquis seed wheat to North Dakota by Wm. Walsh of Gleichen. Commenting it says: It should be remembered in this connection that northern grown grains develope qualities which are not found farther south, therefore a seed grain trade with the adjacent states might be found very profitable.

The assisting of Mrs. Hurd and family to go to her parents in England can hardly be said to be a case of deporting an undesirable but rather assisting a deserted and needing family to friends who would look after them properly. It, however, seems a case that the Provincial or Dominion authorities should have dealt with in as much as the husband was sent to jail who only spent a small portion of his time in town. It is hardly fair that the citizens of this town should be obliged to pay the up keep of the family for months and the cost of seeding them away.
One of the governments should make good the amount and turn it back to the town treasury.

Coast Packers Want Alberta Hogs

The big packers of the American Pacific coast are in the market for all the hogs Alberta can produce. They like the Alberta hog. He is meaty and fat and they can make more money from him than they can from his American cousin. And when it comes to the by-products the only thing that is wasted is the final squeal that he makes just before he gives up his hoggish ghost, still alive but on his way to the smoke house.

That is the substance of a letter received by the Industrial Bureau from Frye and Company of Seattle, leading packers of the coast. This concerns buyers have been in the Alberta market for some weeks in fact they were here immediately after the American congress took the duty off Canadian meats. Last week they shipped from Calgary a solid trainload of Alberta hogs, and they want more of them.

Big things are doing in Alaska. The American congress has just voted to expend $40,000,000 in a 1,000 mile long railroad from the coast into the interior. It is expected to give tremendous impetus to all kinds of enterprises, from townsites to coal and placer mines, and thousands of men will find employment in that country. The coast packers expect to do a big business in Alaska because of this commercial awakening, and will come into western Canada for all the meat that is on the market—Calgary Albertan.

Map of Alta., Sask. and Manitoba Free

A new edition of a publication known as a "Bank Map of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta" has recently been prepared and is now being distributed from the Railway Lands Branch of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa. This interesting compilation shows the location throughout the three prairie provinces, at a very recent date, of each branch of the various Canadian chartered banks and, in table form, the total number of branches of each bank in Western Canada; also complete information with respect to the capitalization, location of head office, etc., of each.

In addition to other interesting features the map shows that in 1913 there were 857 branches in operation throughout the three Prairie Provinces in comparison with 106 in 1903.

Irrespective of the special information which has been incorporated in the public the map will no doubt prove of considerable value to all persons interested in Western Canada, on account of the complete railway information shown. Each system is indicated by a separate color making it a very simple matter to determine the location of a particular railway, and to observe at a glance which system serves certain points throughout Western Canada.

The various post offices at which government savings banks have been established by the Post Office Department are likewise given in table form, thus enabling the public to procure a general knowledge, after a few minutes perusal of the map, of the banking facilities available at any point throughout Western Canada.

Copies may be obtained free of charge upon application to F. C. Lynch, superintendent of the Railway Lands Branch, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

CAPITAL AND PROFIT WHAT IS FAIR RETURN?

Grain Growers' Grain Company Made a Twenty-five Per Cent. Profit

According to the annual statement of the Grain Growers' Grain Company presented at their annual meeting in Winnipeg on November 12th, profits for the year amounted to $164,332 on a paid up capital of $645,361, which is equal to about 25 1/2%. The profits would have been nearly 50% had not the Company lost over $170,000 in the export grain business. The statement was generally accepted by the shareholders as a most satisfactory one. The assets of the company are also in very good shape, and their real estate is increasing in value every year.

Several Canadian papers commented on the good showing made, among them the "Canadian Courier," which asks and discusses the following pertinent questions:

"Should a manufacturer in Eastern Canada, who is making a profit of twenty per cent. on his investment, reduce the price of his wares to the public? This is a question which has often been asked and never satisfactorily answered. How would it be to refer it to the Grain Growers of the West, among whose members are men who think the Eastern manufacturer is a robber and bloodsucker? Would this be too hard on the manufacturer, do you think? Well, let us see.

"On November 12th, in the city of Winnipeg, 450 shareholders of the Grain Growers' Grain Company assembled for their annual meeting. These are the people who are said to maintain the 'Grain Growers' Guide,' the paper which is most severe on the Eastern manufacturer. This grain company has a capital of $645,000, and during the year just ended earned more than 26 per cent. No one criticized these enormous profits. No farmer shareholder called the company a robber or bloodsucker. Every one was pleased. A ten per cent. dividend was paid, and the rest of the cash carried forward. Isn't that the answer? If the Grain Growers' Grain Company complacently accept twenty-five per cent. dividend, are not all other people in business entitled to do the same? Does not this justify the bankers and manufacturers in accepting a similar return on their investment?"

BILLION DOLLAR NATION

Trade Statistics Show the Wise Policy is to Keep as Much Money as Possible in Our Own Country

Canada is about to become one of the billion dollar nations. Her total foreign trade in 1912, exclusive of movements of precious metals, was $997,555,201, an increase of $198,306,058 over 1911. Of the total, $547,258,264 was trade with the United States, an increase of $120,191,578 over 1911. The exports to the United States were $138,211,428; and the imports from the United States were $418,040,770.

Canada's chief purchases from the United States were metals, minerals, and manufactures of $135,145,151; coal and coke, $41,117,886; wood and manufactures of $24,982,970; carriages, wagons, etc., $17,486,397; cotton and manufactures, $15,933,786.

These figures show that the United States is taking over $1,000,000 per day from Canada and even after deducting our exports we find ourselves indebted to the United States for over $750,000 per day which we must borrow to pay our debts. The figures show that the tariff cannot be blamed for the high cost of living in the United States, and the same is true elsewhere.

clearly suggest even to a lay reader that we should strive in some way to keep more of this vast sum in Canada where it would circulate over the counters of Canadian merchants. In the pay envelopes of Canadian mechanics, in the purse of the Canadian farmer; in a word in Canada among Canadians. The enormous adverse balance of trade in favor of United States is a serious matter for a young country and it behooves all of us to consider whether we are doing all we can to keep our money working for us at home. A policy of practical patriotism is badly needed.

THE WILSON TARIFF, THE COST OF LIVING

No Material Change, But Increases if Anything, in the Price of Food

During the Presidential campaign in the United States the Democrats made much of the argument that a reduction in the tariff, to which they were pledged, would bring a corresponding reduction in the cost of living. By admitting food products from Canada and elsewhere free the consumer in urban centres would be enabled to purchase his food at a proportionately lower price. The Democrats were elected on a compromise vote, and immediately attacked the problem of reducing the duties. If the cost of living was to be reduced one would naturally look for a sympathetic movement in the cost of food products even prior to the enactment of the Democratic low tariff. One would look for this sympathetic movement in vain, however. It was non-existent, in fact prices of food products never rose as rapidly in the United States as in the first eight months of the current year, when the United States people were pulling down part of the tariff wall.

According to the United States Bureau of Labor statistics, retail prices of the principal articles of food in 40 important industrial cities, gathered and compiled by experts, show that during the year 12 of the 15 articles advanced in price, while only three declined.

Comparison of retail prices on Aug. 15, 1913, with prices on the same date in 1912, shows potatoes advanced 20 per cent.; bacon 18.8 per cent.; smoked ham 17.6 per cent.; eggs, 12.8 per cent.; round steak, 11.5 per cent.; sirloin steak, 10.2 per cent.; pork chops, 9.3 per cent.; hens, 8.7 per cent.; lard, 8.1 per cent.; rib roast, 7.9 per cent.; butter, 5.7 per cent.; and milk 2.7 per cent. Sugar declined 7.9 per cent.; wheat flour, 5.5 per cent.; and corn meal, 2.7 per cent. Compared with average prices for the 10-year period—1890 to 1899—every article for which prices were noted with the exception of sugar, advanced. Bacon advanced 189 per cent.; pork chops, 124.5 per cent.; round steak, 79.3 per cent.; rib roast, 76.5 per cent.; potatoes, 75.2 per cent.; hens, 72.2 per cent.; lard, 69.8 per cent.; eggs, 66.4 per cent.; cornmeal, 60 per cent.; butter, 41.9 per cent.

When the price of each of the 15 articles of food is weighed according to average consumption in workingmen's families, retail prices on Aug. 15, 1913, were 6.1 per cent. above the average price for the 10-year period—1890 to 1899; 8 per cent. above the price on Aug. 15, 1912, and 14.9 per cent. above the price on Aug. 15, 1911. It would seem evident, therefore, that the tariff cannot be blamed for the high cost of living in the United States, and the same is true elsewhere.

GET YOUR CANADIAN HOME FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

Wonderfully fertile land is offered for sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at prices ranging from $11 to $30 per acre. There is no better agricultural land than this virgin Canadian soil. It is unsurpassed for all forms of agriculture, including grain growing, stock raising, dairying, poultry culture, vegetable growing, and general mixed farming. The lands are convenient to railways and markets, and are located in a country of low taxation and delightful climate.

TWENTY YEARS TO PAY

Under the Company's new policy no land is sold to speculators, but only to those who will occupy and improve it. The terms of sale are now one-twentieth cash and the balance spread over twenty years, with interest at six per cent per annum.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Under certain conditions the Company will advance a loan of $2000 to new settlers to be used in erecting a house and barn, fencing the land and sinking a well. This loan is repayable on the same terms as the purchase price.

Together they took the little house in the Crystal Palace Road and furnished it. His weakness she was soon to discover, but with all her pitiable features it lacked offensiveness, and she found herself living much more happily than she could have imagined under the circumstances, and, moreover, possessed of a new sense of protection had the drink habit very strongly developed.

Tom Maple was kind, he was generous, he gave her what she had never had before, an ample supply of pocket money. There was no necessity for her to work, it was independence rather than necessity which urged her to make an attempt on her own behalf, a desire to fill her life with other thoughts and interests, to drive away the wistful discontent that the dullness of the Crystal Palace Road aroused in her.

She had soon learnt to take an interest in the work of this eccentric uncle of hers; she would sit for hours watching his sure hands tracing lines of extraordinary delicacy over the steel plates which lay clamped to the kitchen table in front of him. For Tom Maple earned good money from a firm of banknote engravers, who knew him well enough to appreciate his work sufficiently highly to condone the habit of a lifetime.

She sometimes spent an idle half-hour in the little parlor, wondering what life would have been like had it run its normal course, had her father, whose improvidence she was now beginning to realize, even to herself, earmarked a portion of his income for her. Peculiarly gloomy was the thought of those wintry days when snows of fog came rolling up from Peckham Rye, shutting out the sad sameness of the road, leading to the wipers of trees strung like garlands in the small patch of ground before the house, a mysticism and a ghostly importance, which no suburban tree or ordinary possession.

She was sitting in the parlor on the evening following Gold's visit; it had been a bright, sunny day, and the evening brought hues of orange and saffron to beautify the outlook. Sitting with a book on her knees before the open window, she heard her uncle's light step in the passage without. It passed, stopped as if in hesitation, then came back. The handle turned and the door opened and her uncle came in. She looked up at him.

"Do you want me, uncle?" His face was paler than usual, the dark rims that his eyes, which were darker, seemed a shade blacker. He looked at her without speaking for a time, then he came farther into the room and closed the door. He sat down in a chair opposite the girl.

"Do you want anything, uncle?" she asked again. He shook his head.

Verity, he said seriously, I have been thinking about you and I have been wondering whether I ought not to tell you something about myself. She waited. He looked past her into the road and heaved a little sigh. Then he brought his eyes back to her face.

I have had rather a curious life, he said.

There was no trace of the slithering accent which was peculiar to his voice after one of his bouts. His lips trembled a little and the hand that he raised to his mouth mechanically from time to time, shook ever so slightly.

You don't know anything about me, do you? and she shook her head smilingly.

I know you are my uncle, she said.

and the dearest and kindest uncle that any girl ever had.

He dissented. You must not think too well of me, he said. I am not—perhaps—what you think I am. One never knows.

Never knows what, uncle? asked the girl. He looked at her a little sadly.

If anything should happen to me, he said, there is a man in London I want you to go to. He put his hand in his inside pocket and took out a stiff brown notebook, removing the elastic band which bound it together.

And here is something else, he said. The other day I asked you for a specimen of your handwriting and got you to sign your name for me. I have opened an account for you in the London and North Western Bank. It isn't huge, he said hastily, as he saw the look of surprise and pleasure on the girl's face, but it will be enough to carry you on if anything should happen to me.

A hint of alarm was in the girl's eyes as she asked: You have said that twice, uncle, what can happen to you? He shook his shoulders weakly.

You never know, he said again. He had taken from his pocket book a smaller one bound with brown leather and bearing the name of the bank. Keep this in a safe place, he said, handing it to her. He withdrew a folded notebook from his pocket and passed it across to her.

Then he rose. One of these days I suppose you'll want to get married. She shook her head with a laugh.

You will, he insisted with a flash of humor; at some time in your life, every girl shakes her head as you did, and they all go to the same way. A little nod, a quick nervous sweep of the hand, and he was leaving the room when she remembered something.

Uncle, she said, you have not told me the name of the man whom I must see. He stopped, hesitating, with the door knob in his hand.

It's a man named Constable Bell, he said. I will tell you about him later. The next instant he was gone. She watched him as with quick steps he passed down the road out of sight.

What did he mean by his past life? She was old enough now to know that these changes of name which had once amused her had a serious importance; men are not Schmidt in Berlin one week, and von Grafenfeld in Prague the next, unless there is something sinister in their profession. She almost wished she had persuaded him to speak out and tell her everything.

She looked at her watch. She had an appointment at six o'clock. She wondered what sort of a man this Mr. Constable Bell was; it was rather strange that he should have asked her to go to Curzon Street, that he could not find time to interview her at his office. But she was ready to find excuses for any busy man and the fact did not trouble her greatly.

Helder occupied a floor at 406, Curzon Street. The house was the property of a retired butler who found pleasure and profit in turning the establishment into a high class boarding-house. Perhaps, boarding-house is not the term, since none of the residents had any other meals than breakfast and an occasional supper in their rooms. As it was, even the rent was stiff enough for any man other than one who was in receipt of a very comfortable income, but this Helder was credited with possessing.

Verity Maple was shown straight up to his sitting room and found him sitting before a large desk, smothered with printers proofs and magazines. He looked up at her keenly as she entered and rose, offering his hand.

Take a seat, Miss—er—His hesitation was artistic, he knew well enough what name she bore. I am sorry to bring you down here, Miss Maple, he said when she had told him her name, but I am such a busy man and I had a number of engagements in the city which made it impossible for me to see you.

His tone was brief and business-like and the unpleasant impression which she had received when she first saw him was to some extent dissipated. The work I want you to do, he continued, is fairly interesting, you speak French, do you not?

Yes, she said, and he nodded. I am associated with a little journal in which I shall ask you to take an interest, he went on. It is a journal which is not very well known.

This time his friendly smile was less business-like, and instinctively she resented it. They discussed for a little time the question of salary; he was willing, yet eager to give her all she asked, another bad sign from her point of view. Just as soon as she could finish the purely business side of the conversation she rose.

She shall expect you to-morrow, he said.

He held her hand a little longer than was necessary, saw her to the door and into the street.

Verity Maple came away from her first interview with her new employer with a undefinable sense of misgiving as to her wisdom in accepting the position.

Any man who knew Helder could have told her things which would have perhaps altered her whole plan entirely, but the only man who knew her well enough to impart that information was Twentyorth Gold, who in one swift appraising glance had marked her down as one who was quite capable of taking care of herself. Moreover, he was anxious to learn more of Helder than he already knew and Verity Maple was the type of girl who could supply that information.

Robert was home from college for the Christmas holidays and had just left his father and a neighbor.

Your son, said the neighbor, is pursuing his studies at college isn't he?

I guess so, said the father; he's always been—

Prosperity has ruined many a man, remarked the moralizer.

Well, rejoined the demoralizer, if I was going to be ruined at all I'd prefer prosperity.

Force of Habit

A young lady telephone operator recently attended a watch-night service and fell asleep during the sermon. At the close the preacher said: We will now sing hymn number three forty-one—three forty-one.

The young lady awoke just in time to hear the number, yawned and said: The life is busy. Please call again.

He Wouldn't Have To

Now, Tommy, said the Sunday-school teacher, suppose you had two apples and you gave another boy his choice of them, you would tell him to take the largest one, wouldn't you?

No, ma'am, said Tommy promptly. Why, Tommy? exclaimed the teacher in shocked surprise, why not?

Well, said Tommy, in this bunch it wouldn't be necessary to tell him that.

Perhaps

Ah, sighed the boarder who was given to rhapsodies, if we could only have one of those turkeys that we used to raise on the farm when I was a boy.

Oh, well, said the pessimistic boarder, perhaps it is one. You never can tell.

Pretty Hard to Believe

The automobile was a thing unheard of to a mountaineer in one community and he was very much astonished one day when he saw one go by without visible means of locomotion. His eyes bulged, however, when a motorcycle followed closely in its wake, and disappeared like a flash around a bend in the road.

Geese, he said, turning to his son, who'd have supposed that thing had a coat?

What He Didn't Know

Now, Harold, said the teacher, if there were eleven sheep in a field and six jumped it, fence, how many would there be left?

None, replied Harold. Why, yes, there would.

No, he persisted; you may know arithmetic, but you don't know sheep.

A One-Cylinder Joke

Do you think the motor car has come to stay? asked one man of his neighbor.

Well, replied he, there was one out in front of my house today which I thought had; but they got a horse after a while, and it went home.

Ali Had

A medical student was talking to a surgeon about a case.

What did you operate on the man for? the student asked.

Three hundred dollars, replied the surgeon.

Yes, I know, said the student. I mean, what did the man have?

Three hundred dollars, replied the surgeon.

The Scrub Lady's Family

Mrs. O'Flarity is a scrub lady, and she had been absent from her duties for several days. Upon her return her employer asked her the reason for her absence.

Sure, I've been carin' for wan of me sick children, she replied.

And how many children have you, Mrs. O'Flarity? he asked.

Siven in all, she replied. Four by the third wife of me second husband, three by the second wife of me first.

It Wouldn't Interfere

Want a job, eh? said the prospective employer to the shrewd-looking applicant for the position as errand boy.

Well, do you know how far the moon is from the earth?

Now, sir, said the youth, I don't know. But it ain't close enough to prevent me from runnin' yer errands. He got the job.

The Merit of Pauline

Pauline, who had been attending a school for two weeks, was telling her parents about the naughtiness of her classmates.

That's bad, said her mother, and did the teacher have to speak to you, too? No, said Pauline, she had to speak to all the class but me this afternoon.

Good, replied her mother, what did she say?

Why, answered Pauline, she said: Now children, we will all wait until Pauline is in order.

When One Must Be Careful

The judge of a Texas county was also cashier of the town bank. One day a stranger presented a check for payment and his evidence of identification was not satisfactory.

Why, Judge, said the man, I've known you to sentence men to prison for life on no better evidence than this!

That may be true, replied the Judge. But when it comes to handing out cold cash we have to be mighty careful.

She was a pretty, young school-teacher and was reading sentences to her class, letting them supply the last word.

The sphinx, she read, has eyes, but it cannot—

See! cried the children.

Has ears, but it cannot—

Hear! cried the children.

Has a mouth, but it cannot—

Speak! cried the children.

Has a nose, but it cannot—

Smell! cried the children.

Wipe it! thundered the class.

The lesson then ended.

No Wonder she Blushed

That's a nice-looking fellow who's just come in, said the young man who was dining with his best girl. Is he a friend of yours?

Yes, indeed, I know him well, laughed the maiden.

Shall I ask him to sit with us? Oh, George, said the girl, blushing, this is so sudden.

Su den? What do you mean? he asked in surprise.

Why—why, that's our young minister.

PRESIDENT SUSPENDER

None so easy

Would it be so cruel? Archbish, Ryan once attended a dinner given by the citizens of Philadelphia and a brilliant company of men were present.

Among others were the president of the Pennsylvania railroad, ex-Attorney-General Mac Veagh, counsel for the road, and other prominent railroad men.

Mr. MacVeagh, in talking to the guest of the evening, said: Your Grace, among others you see here a great many railroad men. There is a peculiarity of railroad men that even on social occasions you will find that they always take their lawyer with them.

That is why I am here. They never go anywhere without their counsel. Now they have nearly everything that men want, but I have a suggestion to make to you on an exchange with us. We can give you free passes on all the railroads of the country. Now if you would only give us—a free pass to Paradise by way of exchange.

Ah, no, said His Grace, with a merry twinkle in his eye, that would never do. I would not like to separate them from their counsel.

Which Was Worse? A farmer buying some tools in a hardware store, was asked by the proprietor if he did not want to buy a bicycle.

A bicycle won't eat its head off, said the salesman, and you can ride it around your farm. They're cheap now and I can let you have one for thirty-five dollars.

I guess I'd better put a thirty-five into a cow, said the farmer reflectively.

He-ha, laughed the hardware man, you'd look mighty foolish, riding round your farm on a cow, now, wouldn't you?

Well, durso, said the farmer, no more foolish than I would milking a bicycle.

He Had His The Bishop of London was to perform the ceremony at a very smart wedding. As usual a great crowd of people stood about the door and lined up on each side of the strip of red carpet.

Magnificent carriages and motor cars rolled up and disgorged the splendidly dressed guests, but at the end of a long string of fine equipage came a deplorable, ramshackle old four-wheeler. It drew up gloomily opposite the strip of red carpet.

A couple of policemen dashed at the cabby.

Here, hi, they shouted. You can't stop here! The Bishop's just coming along.

The old cabby regarded them with a scornful eye.

Keep yer 'air on! I've got the old buffer inside.

And the Bishop opened the door and stepped out.

Oh, But It Was Cruel! A woman entered a railway train crowded with winter tourists and happened to take a seat in front of a newly married couple.

She was hardly seated before the couple began making remarks about her which some of the passenger must have heard.

Her last year's bonnet and cloak were freely criticized, with more or less giggling in the bride's part; and there is no telling what might have come next if the woman had not put a sudden stop to the conversation by a bit of clever, feminine strategy.

She turned her head, noticed that the bride was considerably older than the bridegroom, and in the smoothest of tones said:

Midam, will you please have your son remove his feet from the back of my chair.

Correct Pop, said Willie, what is a diplomat? A diplomat, my son, answered the wise father, is a man who remembers a woman's birthday but forgets her age.

Wondered Why And Found the Answer Many pale, sickly persons wonder for years why they have to suffer so, and eventually discover that the drug caffeine—in tea and coffee—is the main cause of the trouble.

"I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. I never had much sleep and often would red my eyes. I was always so pale, thin and weak. About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly take sufficient nourishment to sustain life."

"During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it. (Tea is just as harmful because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"After while I came to the conclusion that coffee was hurting me, and decided to give it up and try Postum. When it was made right—dark and rich—I soon became very fond of it."

"In one week I began to feel better. I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, headache spells entirely gone."

"My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 148 lbs. I attribute my present health to the life-giving quality of Postum."

"Nine given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read 'The Road to Wellville' in files."

Postum now comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be boiled. Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. Grocers sell both kinds.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

Wh. She Wanted

She walked into the public library and sweetly said: I would like 'The Red Boat' please. The librarian diligently searched the catalogue and came back with: Don't think we have such a book. Flushing a bit she sweetly said: May the title be 'The Scarlet Yacht'?

Again he looked, with the same result. Then with her pretty fingers she went into her bag, consulted a slip of paper and said: Oh, I beg pardon. I mean the Rubiyat.

Wouldn't Mind That An Italian who kept a fruit stand was much annoyed by possible customers who made a practice of handling the fruit and pinching it, thereby leaving it softened and often spoiled.

Exasperated, beyond endurance he finally put up a sign which read: 'If you must pinch da fruit—pincha a cocoonat.'

A Personal Application Say, Parson, said Elder Berry at the church board meeting, here are the regulations of all of the quartet choir. My, my, said Doctor Fourtly in distress, what's the trouble? Your announcement Sunday morning, replied Elder Berry sternly; you know you said. Providence having seen fit to afflict all our choir with bad colds, let us join in singing 'Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow.'

Causes & Asks. No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the establishing of automatic conditions. Dust from the street, from flowers, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to eradicate except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncertainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy which has freed a generation of asthmatic victims from this source of the bronchial troubles. It is sold everywhere.

His Fear Mrs. Capron informed her husband one morning that she expected a party of guests that afternoon. Immediately Mr. Capron arose and put all the umbrellas away, much to his wife's astonishment.

Why, Walter, do you fear my guests will steal your umbrellas? she asked in an injured tone.

No, said Walter, as he closed the closet door; I'm afraid they will recognize them.

Minard's Liniment Cures Garget in Cows

Probably She Would Mrs. Newbridge came hurriedly into her husband's study one morning.

Herbert, dear, she said, this recipe for lemon pie says to sit on a hot stove and stir constantly.

Well, Alice, replied the doctor husband, if you do sit on a hot stove I think you will stir constantly.

Why Dirty Was Collected What's this? demanded the customs officer, pointing to a package at the bottom of the tourist's trunk. That is a foreign book entitled 'Politeness,' answered the man who had just landed.

Well, I guess I'll have to chase you duty upon it, replied the inspector. It competes with a small and struggling industry in this country.

A small boy had been vaccinated, and after the operation the doctor prepared to bandage the sore arm, but the boy objected.

Put it on the other arm, doctor. Why, no, said the physician, I want to put the bandage on your sore arm, so the boys at school won't nit you on it.

Put it on the other arm, Doc, reiterated the small boy; you don't know the fellows at my school.

In His Defense Daughter, called the father from his position at the top of the stairs, at the well-known hour of 11.55, doesn't the young man know how to say good night?

Does he? asked the young lady in the darkened hall; well, should say he does.

Useless I heard that you were going to marry Archie Blueblood, Esther. Is it true? asked one young society woman of another.

Marry him? I should say not! Why I wouldn't know what to do with him. He can't ride, play tennis, golf or drive a motor car!

Well, said the friend, he can swim beautifully, you know.

You wouldn't want a husband that you had to keep in an aquarium would you?

He Wanted Instruction Jerbo & Helen were sitting on the beach in the moonlight when, moved by an impulse he could not resist, he suddenly kissed her.

Oh, Herbert, she exclaimed, that's not right.

I'm very sorry, Helen, replied Herbert humbly. I did the best I knew how. Won't you show me the proper way?

James' Heroism James returned home from school with strong evidences of a serious disagreement with one of his associates. As he entered the room his mother looked up and in surprise inquired: Why, James, how did you get your clothes so badly torn?

Trying to keep a good little boy from being kicked.

That is just like my brave little son, said the mother fondly. Who was the good little boy?

Me.

The information editor received this letter from a fresh youth:

Kindly tell me why a girl closes her eyes when a fellow kisses her.

The editor replied:

If you will end us your photograph we may be able to tell you the reason.

Aged People

sometimes forget that poor teeth and improper mastication prevent sufficient nourishment from ordinary food and burdens the digestive organs, but if every man or woman past fifty would fully realize the bountiful, sustaining nourishment in Scott's Emulsion they would take it after every meal.

Scott's Emulsion contains the renowned body-building fats of pure cod liver oil, so medically predigested that it distributes energy, power and strength all thru the body and simplifies the stomach's work.

To people in declining years we say with unmistakable earnestness—Scott's Emulsion will add years to your life and life to your years.

How to Tell Before the guests had arrived for the Christmas party the girls had congregated in the lower hall, conversing on topics nearest their hearts.

Oh, girls! said Dolly; I know a new charm to tell when a boy loves you. What is it? queried the chorus?

SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL

Hockey fans and supporters have good reason to be pleased with the success of their basket social and dance held in the opera house last Thursday evening.

Music was furnished for the occasion by Chas. Mitchell, cornetist, Mrs. Eukor, Trombone player, assisted by a violinist from Bassano. Dancing continued until after 11 o'clock, when T. H. Bech, with profound eloquence, auctioned off the baskets, of which there were a goodly number. The awards of prizes were also announced as follows: Most original basket—Miss Davis; most beautiful basket—Mrs. Gaudaur.

One of the baskets sold for $12.00 another for $10. There were many beautiful and original designs among the baskets, reflecting great praise upon the ladies. Dancing was resumed after supper.

After clearing all expenses, $75.00 remained for the team's exchequer. The hockey team and management wish to express their thanks to those who helped make the affair a success.

Mrs. Ford, of the Weyburn (Sask.) Bath and Door Factory arrived in Gleichen Monday evening for a visit with his son, Wm. Ford, of the Phillips ranch. He has been to British Columbia on a business trip.

Dr. G. H. Farquharson was up to Calgary Sunday evening to see that new daughter.

Miss Dora Broussard returned last Sunday from a visit to her former home in Crookston, Minn. On her way home she spent a week with friends in Winnipeg.

DESERTED FAMILY

RECEIVE AID

As promised in last issue the Call now gives the statement of the citizens of Gleichen in relation to and sending Mrs. Hurd and family to her home in England.

It will be seen that the citizens subscribed $113 and the Council made up the deficiency of $87.75, also $5 collected by F. C. Vigar last November and in turning in $3.50 added $2.25.

Appended is a statement of the receipts and expenditures as handled by Chief Roberts:

RECEIPTS
C. J. Bray	$ 10.00
Jan. McLeod	5.00
J. L. Laycock	5.00
Jack Roberts	5.00
Thos. Henderson	10.00
J. B. Leggett	5.00
Harry Smith	5.00

Total	$620.30
EXPENDITURES
Fare to England	$180.00
Cash paid Mrs. Hurd	60.00
Total	$240.00
Total	$620.30

In order to make the statement complete Mr. Vigar's account of the trust fund is given. As justice of the peace he obtained from F. R. Hurd when sent to jail $40, and later from Mr. Hurd on wages due $45.55, making a total of $85.55. It will be noted that in all accounts sent due that liberal discounts were allowed and that Mr. Vigar paid for coal, groceries, etc., as required by the family.

It may be best here to state that Mrs. Hurd under great worry and not being physically strong made statements that led some to believe she was in want and said she should have had her husband's wages.

It is indeed unfortunate that such rumors are given credence and give cause for such expenses. The trust account receipts and expenditures were as follows:

RECEIPTS
Nov. 11—F. R. Hurd	$ 50.00
Nov. 21—Mr. Hurd	45.55
Balance paid by F. C. Vigar	5.00

ALBERTA STOCK YARDS,
CALGARY, & GLEICHEN

On Friday, February 14, 1914 Receipts of live stock this week were as follows:

Cattle—Horses—Hogs—Sheep
100 150 250 1200

The market this week opened very quiet for all kinds of beef cattle, and the market for sheep was also quiet. Stock cattle are in good demand, and from now on we expect to be able to pretty good as we have several inquiries for stockers. Sheep are very firm.

Hogs were the chief thing on the market, and the demands for the week were exceptionally good. One extra choice load shipped the market at $1. We are quoting 8 cts but are of the opinion that extra good loads may make a little more money. Both Frye & Co., Seattle, and Swift Canadian Co. were heavy buyers taking ten double decks each. The Vancouver Prime Butcher Co., and the western Packing Co., Calgary, also bought several car loads.

NOTE—We have for sale a car load of Registered Short Horn Bulls just arrived.

We beg to quote the following prices for the week ending next week:

Choice heavy beef cattle $1.00 to $1.15
Common heavy beef cattle .85 to $1.15
Choice light beef cattle .85 to $1.15
Common light beef cattle .75 to $1.15
Choice heavy hogs .50 to $1.15

Advertising Does Not Pay

- It does not pay the slaves of precedent.
- It does not pay the merchant who advertises once—and then quits.
- It does not pay the merchant who expects advertising to take the place of honesty.
- It does not pay the merchant whose printed statements misrepresent his goods or his prices.
- It does not pay the merchant who claims to be "too small to advertise"—and wants to stay that way.
- It does not pay the merchant who believes there are "slack seasons" when people cease to eat, drink, and wear out clothes.
- It does not pay the quitter—the crook—the faker—the stimulator. Advertising is the deadly foe of all that is bad—just as it is life and health to all that is good.
- Advertising plus dishonesty, or advertising plus poor goods and unsound business methods is death—sure and quick. The more advertising the quicker the death.
